Letter from the Chairman

Fiscal year 2008 – 2009 was a challenge to everyone involved with the Conservancy of Southwest Florida. But I am pleased to report that the Conservancy staff and the Board of Directors worked together to ensure we protected the money and the trust you have invested with us.

The unique economic circumstances particularly impacted the non-profit sector. But through it all, the Board of Directors and the Conservancy Management Team took appropriate steps to ensure our core programs to protect our water, land and wildlife would continue.

For example:

- The Board members helped subsidize half the budget gap for the fiscal year.
- Conservancy employees pitched in for the other half, reducing their budgets and even for a time, reducing their pay.
- We took no draw from the endowment for over 11 months and reduced our investment exposure in equities.

The net impact of these efforts was that the corpus of the endowment was saved and protected for the future.

Additionally, generous donors provided $30 million toward our $33 million “Saving Southwest Florida” Campaign goal. “Magic Under the Mangroves,” chaired by Maureen Lerner, provided over $375,000 for our annual operating budget.

As the “Saving Southwest Florida” Campaign continues, you will be receiving more communication about the Campaign and about exciting naming opportunities that still remain. I ask you to please consider the opportunity to make a gift toward our future.

We thank you for your annual membership and donations to support our everyday work. Thank you for your support for the Capital Campaign to insure our future. And, thank you for your overall commitment and belief in us to protect our water, our land, our wildlife... and our future.

Dolph von Arx
Chairman
Conservancy of Southwest Florida

Letter from the President

“The ultimate test of man’s conscience may be his willingness to sacrifice something today for future generations whose words of thanks will not be heard.” – Gaylord Nelson, former governor of Wisconsin and co-founder of Earth Day:

We faced many challenges in the 2008 – 2009 Fiscal Year, some of which were unprecedented. Would proposed development take over the last of our wild lands? Could we preserve the integrity of our water quality? And, how could we continue our overall mission in one of the most challenging economic times?

We received record levels of support to protect our water, our land and our wildlife. Every donation of talent, time or money, no matter how large or small, made an impact.

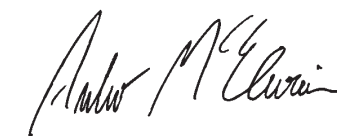

Your support enabled us to accomplish many things over the past year. We initiated our environmental education partnership with FGCU and one of our first “Sustainable Campus” initiatives was completed. The new filter marsh, designed to remove pollutants from the water flowing from the Coastland Mall area, is also a new habitat for juvenile fish and wading birds.

The sea turtle satellite tag program helped us monitor their movements to establish greater protection methods. We ensured our waters and wetlands continued to support healthy ecosystems and a healthy economy by restricting levels of nutrients that dump into our rivers, bays and estuaries.

The Conservancy of Southwest Florida filed a legal petition to protect the Florida panther’s remaining habitat. Too many residential and commercial developments have been approved that are chipping away at their habitat located in some of our last remaining wild lands and water recharge areas.

Our education department continued to improve both the quantity and quality of its environmental education offerings while the Wildlife Clinic team continued to treat over 2,000 animals over the course of a year.

Yes, these are challenging times. But we have accomplished a great number of our goals because of your support. Thank you for your passion for protecting our paradise.

Andrew McElwaine
President & CEO

“The Conservancy utilizes structured, thoughtful and deliberate processes to develop science-based policies for protecting our water and wetlands.”

– Nicholas G. Penniman IV, Conservancy of Southwest Florida Former Board Chair

The Conservancy education team works with local schools to teach students about our natural resources.

Florida's waters provide drinking water for hundreds of thousands of people, a world-renowned haven for wading birds and other wildlife and are the heart of a $59 billion sport-fishing and tourism industry. Yet over 50 percent of Florida's waters are too polluted for swimming or fishing.

In 2008-2009, the Conservancy of Southwest Florida continued its work to improve the quality, quantity and timing of our vital water resources.

- Working with local community leaders and decision-makers to establish more stringent stormwater rules to reduce pollutants that flow into our bays, estuaries and rivers. The City of Naples was one of the first groups to adopt the new rules.
- Ongoing monitoring of water quality in Vanderbilt Lagoon and Water Turkey Bay for over 13 years in conjunction with the Vanderbilt Beach Residents' Association and the Estuary Conservation Association.
- Completing a comprehensive environmental research report on the water quality of Estero Bay as part of the "Gulf of Mexico" grant project.
- Initiating a "Community Outreach" Volunteer Corps to speak to organizations and home owners associations on how to better manage stormwater and reduce nutrient pollution.
- Challenging permits issued for construction of golf courses and houses in North Naples along the Cocohatchee Slough that would have destroyed thousands of acres of wetlands.

“People who support the Conservancy love that we care about keeping the natural beauty of our area protected.”

– Barbara Conklin, Conservancy Member and 30-Year Veteran Volunteer

Our land.

Thousands of acres of natural lands have been preserved for the public and environmental restoration.

Despite historic levels of foreclosures and home inventory, development still threatens to devour our last remaining agricultural and wild lands in eastern Collier and Lee Counties, plus rural lands in Charlotte, Hendry and Glades Counties. Conservation easements on properties supervised by the Conservancy are being violated. And Western Everglades restoration has been an on-again/off-again process.

Facing unprecedented pressures on our quality of life in Southwest Florida, the Conservancy continues to advocate “better build” policies and provide ongoing research to protect our lands.

- Recommending and supporting an environmentally-responsible site for the proposed new Boston Red Sox stadium.
- Working with decision-makers to successfully create “caps” on credits to transfer development to less environmentally-sensitive lands in eastern Collier County.
- Monitoring baseline ecosystems in the Western Everglades to help determine the success of the restoration efforts.
- Guiding sound, sustainable development practices in a 130-acre environmentally-sensitive area in Lee County necessary for recharging water supplies.
- Enforcing conservation easements among thousands of acres of easements granted to the Conservancy across the region.
- Working with Charlotte, Glades and Hendry Counties’ decision-makers to develop science-based comprehensive development plans that will balance environmental protection with economic development.
- Supporting the State purchase of natural lands for public use and environmental restoration.

“Saving open spaces and the wildlife that live within it is critical to our welfare and quality of life.”

– Dolph von Arx, Conservancy of Southwest Florida Chairman of the Board

Florida is home to over 56 threatened and endangered animal species, some of which run the risk of disappearing during our lifetime. As development encroaches upon essential wildlife habitats, interactions with humans continue to take their toll. A record number of Florida panther deaths were recorded in 2009 and the Conservancy Wildlife Clinic treated over 2,200 injured, sick and orphaned native animals.

While the problem is large and complex, the Conservancy of Southwest Florida continues to take action to ensure none of the species disappear under our watch.

- Continuing one of the longest-running sea turtle research and monitoring programs in the country and applying new satellite tag technology to develop even better protection methods.
- Treating over 2,200 native animals in the outdated 1,500 square foot Wildlife Clinic that was built over 30 years ago to treat 600 animals annually. Despite the odds, the team successfully released about half back into the wild.
- Providing a new home for a juvenile female loggerhead sea turtle to educate guests about the importance of protecting the species. The turtle will live at the Conservancy for 3 – 4 years, allowing it to grow to 18 inches to improve its chances for survival when released.
- Utilizing scientific facts to challenge the Department of Interior and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to designate primary habitat to protect the last 80-100 adult Florida panthers. The Conservancy has also provided its expert panther biologist to participate in additional studies and panther collaring programs.
- Researching the population levels of juvenile fish and their prey, and developing best management practices to protect a robust sportfishing industry worth over $2 billion in Florida.
- Restoring mangrove forests to provide safe haven for the marine life and wading birds that utilize them as their “nurseries.”

This injured bobcat kitten was successfully rehabilitated and released by the Wildlife Clinic team and volunteers.

“What we do today, right now, will have an accumulated effect on all of our tomorrows.”

– Alexandra Stoddard, author.

Educating our future environmental leaders is a key priority for the Conservancy of Southwest Florida.

The actions we take today will impact our quality of life over the next 50 years. As the Conservancy continues its “Saving Southwest Florida” Campaign, we are preparing for the future.

- Over 500 active volunteers continue to help us fulfill our mission by donating approximately $1 million of their time annually.
- Conservancy Summer Eco-Camps, designed to develop tomorrow’s conservationists, continue to be awarded annually as a “Peoples Choice” winner for environmental education.
- Young people are getting more involved than ever, becoming volunteers and asking their friends to donate money to the Conservancy in place of birthday gifts.
- Donations to our Endowments will ultimately provide a steady flow of income to ensure the work of the Conservancy continues, including the addition of a full-time veterinarian to the staff.
- The new filter marsh, once a “dead” drainage ditch flowing polluted water from Coastland Mall, is now filtering cleaner waters into Naples Bay and is providing shelter to hundreds of juvenile fish and wading birds.
- The new “Sustainable Nature Center” will act as a showcase for environmental education and how to protect our paradise for the future.

The Campaign

The Campaign Countdown to Raise $33 Million for our Water, our Land, our Wildlife and our Future.

A Message from our Chairman, Dolph von Arx

The Conservancy of Southwest Florida has received hundreds of gifts toward reaching our goal to raise $33 million for the "Saving Southwest Florida" Capital Campaign.

Like you, my wife Sharon and I are asked to support many worthy causes. However, I can think of none greater than the efforts of the Conservancy of Southwest Florida to protect our environment in the very region we call home and where our families and grandchildren visit.

Many meaningful conservation opportunities are still within our reach to protect and preserve the quality of life we all enjoy. We can rely on the Conservancy to address these issues with common sense and a science-based approach, just as they have throughout their 46 year history.

Please consider making a commitment to the "Saving Southwest Florida" Campaign at a contribution level that is right for you. Leave a legacy for future generations.

Contact Rob Moher to get involved and learn about many remaining naming opportunities. 239.403.4205.

This piece was printed on Flo Sheets manufactured by Sappi Fine Paper North America with 15% PCW and FSC Chain of Custody Certification. 100% of the raw materials used to manufacture this paper comes through our SFI certified procurement system. The SFI standard balances the perpetual growing and harvesting of trees with wildlife, plant, soil and water protection. 100% of the electricity used to manufacture Flo Sheets is Green-e® certified renewable energy.

By using this paper:

- 35 lbs of solid waste were recycled instead of sent to landfills

The wood and pulp this paper comes from is guaranteed to be sustainably harvested wood and not from endangered forests anywhere in the world.

OUR MISSION

Protecting Southwest Florida's unique natural environment and quality of life ... now and forever.

OUR VISION

We envision a Southwest Florida where our land, water and wildlife are protected, our citizens are informed and our leaders make decisions with the health, well-being and sustainability of our region in mind. We seek to increase our knowledge of the natural world through continued scientific research and to increase our impact through collaboration with our partners. We work to protect a high quality of life for both our current residents and generations to come.
